FISHER BROS. INDUSTRIAL SUPPLY

Fisher Bros. Store taken 1872.

For the past 118 years we have been helping our customers successfully meet the challenges of their business or industry.

We have accomplished this by providing the right answers to difficult product questions, and creating solutions to the "out-of-the-ordinary" industrial problem. Consequently we have a tremendous amount of technical and problem solving information to share with our customers . . . from the industrial user to the serious do-it-yourselfer.

Originally Fisher Bros. Store was founded by Ferdinand A. Fisher and his brother Capt. A. C. Fisher in 1872 and was located on the N.W. corner of 12th and Marine Drive.

Today's Fisher Bros. Industrial Supply store is one of the longest standing businesses on the Oregon coast, but they continue to move forward.

The company carries a broad variety of product lines including mechanical, hydraulic and electrical products, welding supplies, work clothes, bearings and seals as well as industrial and related parts.

THE DAILY ASTORIAN

949 Exchange Street, Astoria, Oregon

The Daily Astorian is one of the oldest newspapers in Oregon. Its predecessor newspapers date to 1873. They were the Weekly Astorian and the daily Evening Budget.

Through a series of ownerships, two daily papers emerged — The Morning Astorian and The Evening Budget. In 1930 they were consolidated into the Astorian-Budget, an evening paper. And in 1961 that newspaper was renamed The Daily Astorian.

Published five days a week, the newspaper has some 10,000 paid subscribers. In Astoria 86 per cent of the households receive the Astorian, which is extremely high market penetration for a daily newspaper. The Daily Astorian serves a wide geographic area including the Long Beach Peninsula of Washington, Clatsop County and north Tillamook County.

In addition to the daily newspaper, the Astorian provides total market coverage with a weekly supplement that is mailed to non-subscribers.

The Daily Astorian has been recognized regionally for its excellence in reporting, photography and typography.

The newspaper has occupied its quarters at 10th and Exchange streets since 1970. Prior to that date it was housed in a building one block north of its present site, where U.S. Bank's building now sits.

THE BENEVOLENT PROTECTIVE ORDER OF ELKS 1890-1990

In 1888, an ambitious young fellow by the name of John Fox arrived in Astoria and went to work for the old 18th Street Foundry and Machine Works. He was from Quebec, Canada. He and 25 other enthusiastic young men from the area sent to Chicago for a charter to set up and establish an ELKS Lodge in the City of Astoria. Simeon Quinlin was the Exalted Grand Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks & came all the way to Astoria to help install this second oldest Elk's Lodge in the State of Oregon. The first organizational meeting was held December 23rd, 1890, in the sub-let G.A.R. hall. Since Quinlin was still here, the first regular conducted meeting of the newly formed lodge was held December 25th, 1890, with John Fox presiding as Exalted Ruler, and it was decided that the Lodge would be named in honor of, and was so named, QUINLIN LODGE No. 180 of Astoria, oregon. 10 or 12 years later it was changed to Astoria Lodge No. 180, by mandate. The first permanent site in 1910-11. In December of 1922, it was destroyed in the "big Astoria fire", and the two story building we see, at the same location, was opened for occupancy in 1924. This year we are celebrating 100 years of the founding of ELKDOM in Astoria, oregon.

The Hauke's first home.

The original Hauke's Store.

In 1890 when Hauke's first opened for business, the east end of Astoria was little more than bare land.
The original store offered groceries, meat, hay, feed, hardware, crockery and fishing supplies. Orders were taken in the morning by the driver of the horse and wagon, and delivered in the afternoon.

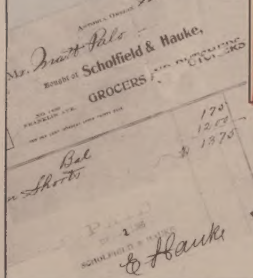
Through Good Times And Bad, The Community Has Always Shown Their Support.

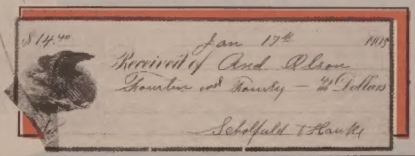
The first Hauke truck driven by a Veteran Teamster from Local 569, in 1914.

In May of 1933, Hauke's ran this ad announcing the arrival of "Old Ironsides." Then as now Hauke's believed in being involved with the community it served.

In 1915 after Hauke's store was totally destroyed by fire, Idun Hall was the temporary quarters while the new store was being built.

Hauke's Market 1950.





As the needs of the community grew, so did Hauke's. In 1960 the store was expanded to meet those needs . . . as always, with quality products and friendly service.

Gearhart GOLF LINKS

PGA PRO: Dan Strite

Golfers on the Gearhart course - 1910. It was then a nine-hole course.

Gearhart Golf Links was established in 1892 and is the oldest golf course on the West Coast.

Originally a 9-hole course, it was expanded to 18 holes in 1913. The course is 6,090 yards, par-72 and is about a mile from north to south. The course is built over sand dunes. The up and down roll caused by the dunes makes a flat lie a rarity.

Gearhart Golf Links has a sand underlay of up to 85 feet. This makes for excellent drainage, making this course playable year round. If you don't like to walk, we have plenty of carts.

Early golfers on the Gearhart course arrived by boat or on the "Daddy Train," so called because it united gentlemen who worked in the city with their families on the coast every weekend.

In reviewing the history of the Gearhart course we find in the American Annual Golf Guide of 1929 the charge was 75¢ per day. Sunday was play permitted and caddies were available.

Gearhart Golf Links was the site of the Oregon Coast Tournament from 1910 until 1951.

The Founders Corporation was the original owner of the course. It was sold to Barney Lucas in 1939. It changed hands several times before 1969, when it was purchased from Roy and June Maden by the present owner, Orson A. Kelly.

COLUMBIA MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

2111 Exchange Street, Astoria, OR 97103 325-4321

Columbia Memorial Hospital is YOUR full service hospital serving all of Clatsop County and the lower Columbia River region of Washington. Our management is directed by Clatsop County residents serving without pay as a volunteer Board of Trustees. We operate from income from the services we provide - we are NOT TAX SUPPORTED.

The Astoria Finnish Brotherhood initiated the hospital project in 1919. Excavation began in 1922 but was halted by the Great Fire that year. Four years later, the Columbia Conference of the Augustana Lutheran Church took over the project. The hospital opened to assist its first patients in 1927, at 646 16th Street (the building now houses Clatsop Care and Rehabilitation).

In 1971, St. Mary's Hospital merged with Columbia Hospital. By the mid-seventies, it became obvious that neither old facility could be modified sufficiently to offer the diverse new health care technologies we knew must be made available in Astoria.

The forward-looking Trustees selected a new site, approved a new plan, and Columbia Memorial Hospital, located at 2111 Exchange Street, opened in 1977.

Each succeeding year has seen appropriate expansions in new services and improved technology. Radioisotope diagnostics and ultrasound were initial services. The first new "full time on-site" C.T. (computerized whole body, very low dose x-ray) Scan on the North Coast was installed here in 1984. VERY LOW DOSE Mammography (early breast cancer detection with the least risk) is in place.

Our Emergency Department is 24-hour physician staffed. Our highly trained Trauma Team may be activated to treat patients who've sustained severe injuries resulting from auto or other accidents.

General and specialized surgeries are performed here utilizing modern equipment and skilled surgical personnel. Same Day Surgery services are available for a variety of surgical procedures.

Physical Therapy and rehabilitation can be completed here as prescribed by local physicians or out-of-town specialists. Follow-up Chemotherapy and Antibiotic therapy as prescribed by Medical Specialists are services rendered at Columbia Memorial Hospital. Our new Outpatient Reception and Registration wing opened in December, 1988, and houses new, more versatile Fluoroscopic X-ray equipment.

A large conference facility offers a place for Wellness and Health related teaching, conferences, and group meetings. No charge Health Insurance Assistance is provided for those who are confused by multiple insurances and hard to understand medical bills. Dietary counseling by prescription, and frequently offered "Eating Slim" programs are available. Our Diabetes Education Team is ready to supply local assistance, counseling and training. The hospital sponsors and supports Lower Columbia Hospice.

WE INVITE YOU TO VISIT US FOR A TOUR, OR TO CALL US FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT WHAT WE HAVE AVAILABLE FOR YOU AND YOUR FAMILY right here in Astoria!

Unfortunately their dreams were short lived as Vivian passed away in 1986 and John a year later in 1987. The current owners are Shireen Ives and Kathe Baldwin, the O'Briens two daughters.

The Seaside Aquarium has provided years of entertainment to both young and old. The seals are always ready to put on a great show, and the everchanging collections of specimens is both educational and interesting. There will be a touch tank added for the enjoyment of all.

ASTORIA EAGLES
AERIE No. 2189
325-0921
894 Commercial St.

On the sixth day of February in 1898, six theater owners, sitting on a lumber pile in the Moran shipyards in Seattle, decided to form an organization. They called it The Order of Good Things, but, soon after its formal organization, the name was changed to the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Most of its earliest members were show people. As they traveled from town to town on the old vaudeville circuits, they talked about the fledgling organization and got new Eagle lodges started. Today there are nearly one million Eagles with clubs in over 1800 communities from Montreal to Manilla, from Alaska to Florida. Eagles have fun helping others, they say, and each local Eagles club provides activities for its members, recreational programs for their families and civic services to the community and nation. Service, not secrecy, is the watchword of the Eagles — People Helping People.

The Astoria No. 2189 club opened in April, 1935 and currently has approximately 750 members.

Hauke tradition marks 100 years

By DAVID HARLAN
Of The Daily Astorian

Regulars weren't hard to spot at the old Hauke's Market.

"They'd either hang on (to their shopping carts) with their hand or they'd put their foot under the wheel," recalls Eric Hauke, retired proprietor of the store that once stood at the oddly angled Astoria intersection where 32nd and Franklin streets cross paths with West Marine Drive.

The unfamiliar or the unwary often overlooked such basic precautions.

"They'd come in the door and grab a cart and go over to the produce section, reach for a carrot or something else, and they'd turn around and the cart would be gone," Hauke remembers. "And it didn't just move a little ways. It would take off maybe 15 or 20 feet."

The old store and its slanted floors are gone, but the business that has helped keep residents of Astoria's east end in groceries in good times and bad times alike continues cater-cornered from its original site in the confines of the modern store building that has housed it since 1978.

Co-founded in 1890 as Scholfield & Hauke Butchers & Grocers by Erik Hauke — Eric's father — the business celebrates a century of trade this year as E. Hauke & Co. Inc.

AND AFTER 100 years on Astoria's east side, it may be the oldest independent grocery business west of the Mississippi River still owned and operated by the same family.

Inquiries made several years ago to state grocery associations throughout the West turned up none older, says Eric Hauke, who restored a struggling family business to profitability after he took over management of the market in 1941.

"As far as I could determine, we are probably the oldest food market that's been run continuously by one family," he says. "We've always owned at least half of the business, never less than half."

"I don't know of any older," says Skip Hauke, who took over management of the business from Eric in 1976 and built a chain of three grocery outlets on the foundation laid by his father.

Erik Ingbretsen was in his mid-30s when he left his native land of Norway in the early 1880s for America's distant shores.

Like many an immigrant's pilgrimage, Erik's wanderlust was fueled by hard economic times in the land of his birth. And like others who crossed to the new country, Erik ended his journey with a new name.

Somewhere during the long trip West it was changed to Haukoy, the name of the little island in a fjord north of the Norwegian coastal town of Namsos, the family's ancestral home.

"IN ORDER TO be identified among other immigrants many changed their name to the places which they were from," Eric Hauke says. The name — which means Hawk Island in Norwegian — was later anglicized to Hauke.

Neither destitute nor rich, Erik Hauke arrived in Astoria in 1882 on the heels of a fire that destroyed much of the city's downtown core. As it did other Scandinavians, the Columbia River's estuary and the city's hillside setting reminded him of the fjords of home.

Erik first married after his arrival in Astoria. When his first wife died, he married Petra Holden. Together the couple had seven children.

With Erik's help, others of the family followed him to Astoria from the old country, including cousins Adolph and Paul. Nearly eight years after his arrival, Erik had saved enough to make the leap into entrepreneurship with an acquaintance, William Scholfield.

Together the two partners built a thriving business on the corner of 32nd Street and Franklin Avenue, selling everything from food, stove pipe and crockery to gum boots and commercial fishing supplies.

"Nobody sold just groceries in those days — it was general merchandise," Eric Hauke says.

When Scholfield died a few years later, Charles Amundsen, a friend of Erik's, and Theodore Siverson, an aquaintance of Amundsen's, bought the other half of the business.

The three partners operated the business sucessfully for several more years until Siverson sold his interest to two other local men, Ole Grotting and Andrew Ness. Amundsen died in 1911, and his piece of the business was sold to cousins Adolph and Paul Hauke.

THE YEARS BETWEEN 1910 and 1914 were good to the business and the Hauke family. The business formally incorporated under the name E. Hauke & Co. Inc., its grocery delivery trade expanded, and a son, Eric, was born to the family in 1911.

When demand for daily grocery deliveries by horse and wagon got too heavy for one driver, two more were hired. In 1914 the business bought a Ford Model T truck to help keep up with demand.

By 1915, through his hard work and enterprise, Erik had established a thriving business and a family. But the next 12 months proved more than unkind to both.

The first blow came when Erik, behind the wheel of a newly purchased Model T automobile, slid off one of Astoria's plank roads and drowned after hooking one of the narrow tires of the car in a streetcar track.

The second came a few months later when a burglar trying to get into the store's safe set off a fire that leveled the business.

"A young man was trying to rob the store, and he had a blowtorch," Eric Hauke recalls. "In the process he burned the thing down."

A short time later Eric's 1-year-old brother, Henry, got caught in a sugar bin at the family home and suffocated. The only bright spot came a short time later with the addition of a baby girl to the Hauke brood.

"IT WAS A tough year," Eric said. "In one year's time my father was killed, the store was burned down, little Henry died in the sugar bin and my sister, Eleanor, was born."

To make matters worse, neither Erik's life nor the store building was covered by insurance, although the stock had been insured.

"He didn't believe in insurance," Eric says.

Despite daunting odds, the remaining partners managed to pull together the funding to build a new store, setting up shop in nearby Idun Hall, a Scandinavian social center, during the interim.

Built on the same corner as the original store and completed in 1916, the new store boasted a whopping 3,500 square feet of retail space and storage.

"I don't know where they got the money for it," says Eric, who began working at the business as a 10-year-old.

As in most retail establishments of the day, customers of the newly built store came in and sat at the counter to order their merchandise. After the order was taken, clerks reached into bins or scampered up tall sliding ladders to fetch the goods from shelves that seemed to stretch all the way up to the 16-foot-high ceilings.

Through several remodelings and the next 60 years the store at the intersection of Franklin and 32nd streets would continue as a mainstay of Astoria's east end.

Grotting took over management of the business after Erik's death and continued until 1920, when Paul Hauke took the reins.

FEW CHANGES WERE made during Paul's tenure as the business and its customers struggled to survive the hard economic times of the 1930s.

Eric, meanwhile, was attending Pacific Lutheran College in Tacoma, Wash. — at that time a two-year institution — after graduating from high school in Astoria in 1929. He went to work for the Union Oil Co. after college, and took a bride — Lenore — in 1937. Working his way up through the ranks, he eventually became assistant manager of the company's Vancouver, Wash., plant.

Though Eric's fortunes improved, those of the family business were flagging. Finally, in early 1941, Eric was asked by the family to take over management of the store. He accepted.

"The old market down here was in terrible, terrible shape," he remembers. Years of marginal profitability had caught up with the business, leaving it with little or no funds to pay suppliers.

Part of the problem was generosity. During the hard times of the 1930s, Paul had let many customers charge their groceries when they couldn't afford to pay for them. Though it took some years, most eventually repaid their debts in full.

"WE WERE DEALING primarily with Scandinavian people, all of whom were honest people who were willing and ready to pay their bills, but often didn't have the wherewithal to do it," Eric remembers. "There was very, very little money lost to those people even though some owed quite a lot."

But a greater problem was the lack of change in the store's operations. Despite the ever-increasing number of telephones in local households, the store's delivery drivers still trundled off each morning to pick up orders going door-to-door before returning to deliver the goods in the afternoon.

"It was a tremendously laborious way of doing business, but that's the way it was," Eric recalls. At the time, home deliveries accounted for roughly 70 percent of the store's trade.

The business soon switched to having customers phone in their orders, but it would take the store 9½ more years to pay off the money owed its suppliers.

With the bills paid, Eric remodeled the store in 1950, making the transition from general merchandise to a dedicated grocery and from long counters and tall ladders to a modern self-service operation.

With automobile ownership becoming widespread in the years following World War II, more and more people began coming to the market to make their purchases, a trend that put an end to the store's home delivery trade in 1956.

THE REMODELING JOB also gave the store its well-remembered slanted floors when a water-logged hillside behind the store was excavated to make way for expansion. With the weight of the hillside removed, the ground under the addition and the back of the building began to rise.

"It wasn't very long before the whole south end of the store began to lift up," Eric says.

Skip Hauke, along with his brother Robert and sister Gail, all got their first taste of the grocery business by "helping" their parents stock the store on Friday nights.

"We ate a lot and read comic books," Skip recalls. Later, while their parents worked into the early hours of the next morning, the children would sleep on the bread shelves.

"We couldn't afford to hire much help in those days," Eric said.

Additional remodelings in 1958 and 1966 added shopping, storage and parking space but did nothing to relieve the effects of gravity on the average grocery cart. The store began its 25-year-relationship with United Grocers Inc. when it became a charter member of the Sentry chain of independently owned grocery outlets in 1965.

Unlike his brother and sister, Skip spent most of his teen years working aboard commercial fishing vessels. After he graduated from high school in 1961 and earning a degree in business administration from Pacific Lutheran University, returning to Astoria and the store was the last thing he had on his mind.

"I SWORE I'D never go back into the grocery business," he recalls.

That suited his father just fine. He wasn't interested in any of his offspring taking over the business — at least not right away.

"I told them I didn't want them coming back and looking for work from dear old dad until they'd gone out in the world for five years," Eric recalls.

"I've told my son (Steven) the same thing," says Skip. "I don't know if I'll have the guts to stick with it."

Steven Hauke, 20, is a junior at Oregon State University. His sister, Jo Ann, is a sophomore at OSU.

"I think that sooner or later he'll end up in the store," Skip says.

But after Skip worked for International Business Machines for several years in the Portland area, other priorities besides fighting the rat-race began to surface. To Skip and his wife, Audrey — who married in 1965 — Astoria seemed the perfect place to raise a family.

SKIP RETURNED TO the business in 1970, bringing some ideas of his own.

"In fact, he had a lot more ideas than I thought he had," Eric recalls. "He had a lot going for him, businesswise."

Those ideas manifested themselves after Eric retired in 1976 and turned over management of the business to Skip.

"He came up with the idea of building a new market," Eric says.

Making the dive into a new building was a necessary step but also meant going back into debt, Skip says. His father never questioned the move.

"He backed me 100 percent on every decision I made," Skip says.

Crews broke ground in January 1978, and on May 31 the new 19,000-square-foot store opened its doors at 3300 Leif Erickson Drive, cater-cornered from the old store building, which was later torn down because of its pronounced lean.

"I cried," says Lenore Hauke, when the business made the move from the old to the new building.

Eric was less sentimental.

"I didn't have any pangs of sorrow getting out of that old store," he says. "It had been a great place, but it was falling apart."

THE NEW STORE proved more than successful.

"We ended up doing as much business in one day over there as we did in a week at the old store," Skip says.

That success eventually led to the purchase of a second store — now Bayside Sentry — on Astoria's south side in 1985, and a third Sentry store in Rainier in 1987. The company also owned and operated Captain's Market, a Seaside convenience store, for several years before selling it in 1987.

'I don't know how long independent stores can survive. And yet, way back in 1941 when I took over the store I wondered how long independent stores could survive — and that was 49 years ago.'

—Eric Hauke

A remodeling job completed in July 1987 at the east end store added a full-service delicatessen and other amenities, upping the store's total square footage to about 25,500.

Plans to develop a small retail center next to that store are on hold pending planned improvements to the nearby Port of Astoria's East End Mooring Basin.

Those additions have expanded the company's roster of about 15 people in 1970 to about 120 today.

And while he has no plans to add any other stores, Skip says he is contemplating remodeling the Bayside and Rainier stores.

"That's pretty much a rule of thumb in the grocery business," he says. "Every 10 years you should make a major remodel."

Like other local groceries, Hauke's local stores definitely felt the effects when the Portland-based grocery and retail giant, Fred Meyer Inc., opened a 142,000-square-foot department store in Warrenton.

"THEY GAVE US a hit, and we expected it," says Skip. "But we seem to be coming back strongly. They've made us sharper."

"We lost some business to Freddies, but so did Safeway and everybody else," Eric says. "Surprisingly, Bayside is ing doing very well."

He compares Fred Meyer's advent to that of the big Safeway store built in downtown Astoria in the 1950s.

"When Safeway opened, I figured it might kill the independents," he says. "It didn't work out that way.

"Still, I don't know how long independent stores can survive," he adds. "And yet, way back in 1941 when I took over the store I wondered how long independent stores could survive — and that was 49 years ago."

PIG'N PANCAKE RESTAURANTS

It all began in May, 1961, when Bob and Marianne Poole opened Pig 'n Pancake, Inc., in Seaside, Oregon. They began their business with $100 and $2,000 worth of borrowed equipment. They opened their restaurant at 6 a.m. and served breakfast and lunch, closing at 2 p.m. During the dinner hours the restaurant was operated by Sam Botti, owner of Botti's Italian Restaurant (the Pig's spaghetti sauce origin). They continued to share the building for approximately 6 months.

After that time, Poole bought the restuarant from Botti for $5,000. 2 years later, he expanded from 35 to 56 seats. Three years later he purchased Estee's Tavern located west of the "Pig" and expanded again. They continued with basic remodeling and increased business for quite some time until 1986 when Pooles purchased the former Sandbagger Tavern. The entire restaurant was practically leveled and rebuilt. Seating capacity went from 142 to 205, square feet from 4,000 to 6,500.

The last remodel took place in the winter of 1988 when Pooles purchased the Frontier Tavern/Restaurant. They leveled the Frontier, opening with an expanded non-smoking area (25-30 more seats); and a new gift shop under the management of youngest, Becki, is entitled Uniquely Northwest and features the works of artists and craftsmen here in the Northwest.

During the years the Pig 'n Pancake restaurant in Astoria was added at 146 West Bond. 2 other "Pigs" operate in Portland.

Over 35 years ago, Shakey Johnson and his partner Big Ed Plummer opened the first Shakey's Pizza Parlor in Sacramento, California. Shakey and Ed wanted to open a plain ol' Beer Joint but with a little something unique. So they decided to serve pizza, beer, and provide Dixieland music.

The rest is history. Shakey's Pizza quickly became known as the World's Greatest Pizza. But we wanted to grow beyond a beer and pizza parlor restaurant, with a varied menu. We still prepare our own dough, fresh every day, and use only the finest of ingredients. Shakey's does serve the World's Greatest Pizza.

A handful of Crown Zellerbach Corporation, Wauna Mill employees banded together in 1967, to establish WFCU. Together, they saw the formation of a credit union as a great way to benefit each other. Members who save provide the means for members who borrow.

In 1974, the WFCU charter was amended and opened to the community. Field of Membership then included all residents and families of the Oregon side of the Lower Columbia area, from Rainier Hill to Warrenton-Hammond.

The Astoria Office opened in 1975, and now accounts for about half the membership. Merger with Longshoremen's CU in 1978, further increased the membership base.

Today, WFCU continues to be "not for profit but for people" serving the financial needs of more than 7,000 members.

COLUMBIA ORTHOPEDIC CLINIC
550 22nd St., Astoria, OR 97103
(503) 325-5625

Doctor John W. Swanson joined the practice in 1978, and in 1981, he purchased Columbia Orthopedic Group from John M. Foster, M.D., who had founded the clinic six years earlier. The clinic was renamed Columbia Orthopedic Clinic in June of 1981.

A new modern orthopedic clinic was planned in 1981. Construction began in October of 1982 and was completed in May of 1983. That facility is now the present Columbia Orthopedic Clinic at 550 22nd Street, immediately across the street from Columbia Memorial Hospital. A new addition to the building was completed in 1989. Providing service with clinics and surgery in Seaside and Ilwaco-Long Beach areas is planned for 1990.

Dr. John W. Swanson, M.D., received his medical education at the University of Iowa and graduated in 1970. He served a one year internship at Harborview Medical Center in Seattle and then spent three years as a general practitioner in the United States Air Force. Dr. Swanson then spent four years doing specialty training in orthopedic surgery at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis. Dr. Swanson is a diplomate of the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery and a Fellow of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons. As part of his commitment to quality patient care, Dr. Swanson regularly attends continuing medical education courses, at least two to three a year. He most recently attended courses on wrist fractures and trauma of the extremities. Dr. Swanson also attended the recent National Orthopedic meeting.

Dr. Swanson was joined by Dr. John M. Ayres, Jr. in 1987. Dr. Ayres practiced Orthopedic Surgery in Moscow, Idaho, for 11 years prior to moving to Astoria. Dr. Ayers received his medical school training at the University of Washington in Seattle graduating in 1970. He then did a one year internship at Santa Clara Valley Medical Center in San Jose, California, and served two years with the U.S. Army. He did specialty training in orthopedic surgery at St. Francis Hospital Medical Center in Peoria, Illinois. Dr. Ayers is a diplomate of the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery and a Fellow of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons. In an attempt to keep his knowledge of orthopedic surgery current, he has attended several courses yearly on a variety of topics relavent to the practice of orthopedic surgery. The most recent of these was "Hip and Knee Reconstructive Surgery" sponsored by U.C.L.A. School of Medicine.

The Columbia Orthopedic Clinic staff includes two Physician's Assistants. Patrick Ambiel who has been with the clinic for 14 years, and contributes not only to patient care, but also to the designing and construction of the building. Mr. Ambiel has over 20 years of medical experience. Dean Jordan joined the clinic in 1989 and brings with him over 20 years of medical experience.

Columbia Orthopedic Clinic provides specialty orthopedic care, including complete replacements of both arthritic hips and knees, arthroscopic surgery of the knee and other joints as well as treatment of all athletic injuries, the treatment of fractures, and hand surgery. To date we have done over 150 total joint replacements. Both of the physicians have passed written and oral examinations and are certified by the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery.

Our Clinic motto is "the best possible care for each individual patient." This motto is carried out by all secretarial, bookkeeping and patient care staff.

Claus Gildner, originally from Munich, West Germany, came to Astoria in 1973 to work at the Volkswagen dealership then located on Marine Drive. The fine reputation and following that he gained there enabled him to open Claus' German Motors in July of 1976. Claus soon expanded his repair of German cars to include repairs of all foreign autos, handling anything from a simple oil & lube to engine rebuilding. He also has a wide variety of import parts in stock.

Claus offers many different customer services such as pick up and delivery, free estimates, loaner car and, since 1985, lifetime lube and oil certificates have been available. Although Claus has retained his original business name as a hallmark of European craftsmanship, he does work on all imports and most domestic automobiles.

Claus also has a quality selection of pre-owned cars for sale. Give him a call if you are buying or selling your import.

Claus' German Motors is still a family run business whose goal has always been "the highest quality work for the lowest possible price". Looking back over the success of the past 14 years, the residents of this area certainly know this is true.

Astoria's Own Music, Dance and Theater Presenting Organization and Proprietor of The New John Jacob Astor Theater in the John Jacob Astor Building 14th and Commercial Sts., Astoria

Dear Astoria

Many people ask us, "Who or What is the Astor Street Opry Company?" Made up of your friends and neighbors, The Astor Street Opry Company is a non-profit organization dedicated to the development and promotion of the performing arts. 100s of volunteers from all walks of life participate in the Opry Company to produce numerous events throughout the year including the historical musical melodrama "Shanghaied in Astoria". "Shanghaied . . ." is a remarkable success, having been performed before over 13,000 patrons over the first five years. Last year was the Opry Company's most successful year. The organization signed a 30 year leasing arrangement on the lobby and mezzanine of the historic John Jacob Astor Hotel and is beginning to lay the groundwork for a new performing arts center to be located therein. An architect has been hired and plans are being drawn up which will transform the faded glory of this landmark structure into a magnificent showplace for everyone to enjoy.

The Opry Company implemented several new programs including Children's Theater in 1989 and has plans to begin puppet theater and senior theater programs in 1990 and 91. And the Opry Company provided several full time and numerous part-time scholarships to performing arts students at Clatsop Community College. In the year ahead the Opry Company will once again present an exciting lineup of performing arts events including the sixth season of "Shanghaied in Astoria". And we will continue upon our fundraising campaign to renovate the historic John Jacob Astor Hotel lobby. We urge you to support this worthwhile project which will benefit the residents of Astoria and the North Coast for many years to come.

Thank You

The Astor Street Opry Company

RESTAURANT

Dooley's would like to extend a mighty Big Welcome. We'd also like to tell you a bit about how our food is prepared.

True to Texas, all our meat is carefully smoked for several hours in our mesquite-fired custom smoker. Top it off with Clay's tasty secret sauce and we think you'll agree — it's real Texas Bar-B-Que.

We do our best to provide quality food and service. We carefully select the juiciest and meatiest ribs, the leanest and tenderest brisket, and the freshest skinless chicken breasts available. Our pea salad is Mom's recipe and the fruit cobbler is truly homemade.

Yes — The chief Cook is from West Texas (Plainview that is — where Bob Wills is still the King and so is Bar-B-Que).

In 1989 a second location opened in Astoria where cocktails are available with your meal in addition to beer and wine that is available at the original Cannon Beach location.

Interface design

777 6th St., Astoria
325-7819

Interface Design was conceived in 1983 by Tim Jenne, with the design of his first boat, the Interface 40. Since then many boats have come of his drafting table. With a fresh start in Astoria he is looking forward to creating many more custom designed vessels.

Interface Design is now located here in Astoria primarily to provide a Yacht Designer for the local boating enthusiasts. Upon studying the market it was determined there were very few designers on the north Oregon coast. This seemed to be out of balance considering the climate of the North coast: it's always windy here, and the proximity to the water.

Interface Design specializes in designing sailing craft, wood, fiberglass, composites, and basically anything else available for the construction of boats. They take a professional approach to design challenges. Offering creative yet reasonable solutions tailored to fit the clients needs. Their slogan is: "Give the people what they want." They offer custom design in the purest form, take time with each customer finding out what they want, and then deliver. Some stock plans are available for the home builder. The latest one will be the Sandwich Island Sharpie, a 20' trailerable sailboat designed with the Columbia River in mind. Also available is a line of yacht tenders by Westwood Boats, an affiliate of Interface Design.

They also offer a blueprinting service, from small to gigantic prints, produced with the same scrutiny as the yachts they design.

Interface Design would like to invite anyone interested to come by the office at 777 - 6th Street, Astoria, OR, or call 325-7819 to see what we we can do for you.

TOYOTA OF ASTORIA

Toyota of Astoria was established in October, 1969, by David Lum, Tom Utti, and Roger Riutta. The dealership was built on the site formerly occupied by Lum-Quing grocery from 1924 to 1964. Shortly after the dealership opened, a parts and service department was added, and another lot was purchased next to the showroom to accommodate an expanding new car inventory. The used car lot is located at 7th & Marine Drive.

In 1985, Toyota of Astoria added Chrysler, Plymouth, and Dodge cars and trucks to their automotive line. They have become one of the most successful dealerships on the north Oregon coast and intend to stay that way by continuing to offer their customers the best in automotive sales and service.

The firm was originally founded by JC Johnson in 1926. At that time it was located on 18th street between Franklin & Exchange. A short time later, it moved to its present location and became an Oldsmobile dealership. In 1954, Johnson bought out the local Pontiac dealership and diversified his line.

In 1978, the dealership was purchased by David Lum & Tom Utti. The new owners changed the name to Lum & Utti and added Subarus and GMC trucks to the Pontiac line. Lum & Utti also has a fine parts, service, and auto body repair department to satisfy all of its customer's automotive needs.
